the anniversary, the thronged attendance of delegates from all parts of the Union, and the flattering prospects and advancement of the profession generally.

Doctor F. CAMPBILL STEWART—as CPairman of the Committee of Arrangements and Reception—then came forward and addressed the assembly in the following forward.

Doctor F. CAMPERIL SINGART—as Crairman of the Committee of Arraogements and Reception—then came forward and addressed the assembly in the following terms:—

At the commencement of its annual meeting, permit the physicians of New York to congratulate the American Medical Association upon the recurrence of its anniversary. Seven years have shaped since the preliminary meeting of the convention which recommended the organization of this national congress assembled here; and as New Yorkers, we indulge in a feeling of proud satisfaction at the triumphant success which has attended so important a movement, originaring in our State. The labors of the learned body over which you, sir, now preside, have been most arduous; but the result has not disappointed the expectations of the friends of reform and of progress in our profession. Mighty objects are aimed at important achievements have been already accomplished; and a guarantee is afforded of the eventual fulfilment of the desires of those whose aspirations for the advancement and perfection of medicine lad them to propose the foundation of this association, which, representing the whole fraternity throughout our wide spread country, assembles annually for scientific discussion, and to consult upon matters partaining to the general welfare of the entire faculty. The five published volumes of your "Tranactions," afford abundant and conclusive evidence of the zeal by which they are actuated, and the ability which characterizes the scientific labors of your members. The meeting of this year has been generally anticipated with peculiar interest; an unusually large attendance has been expected; numerous papers will be presented; valuable reports are to be readered, and much of your time will be required for the consideration of subjects of grave importance—hence I shall not now detant you longer than to assure you that your advent has been auxiously looked for by us, and your collesgues here have been desirous to manifest their spiprecation of the case in which you are eng

The roll of representatives from the different States local associations, medical, surgical, physiological soci ties, and other recognized divisions of the profession, wi then read over by the secretary. About four hundre delegates answered to their names, and it was considered then read over by the secretary. About four hundred delegates answered to their names, and it was considered that hearly as many more gentlemen were in town; but were prevented from presenting their credentials then owing to the different hours at which they had arrived during Monday night and yesterday morning. When the entire roll was gone through, Dr. Stewart reported to the President that a majority of the delegates sent to represent the various bedies, were present, and had answered to their names. The President—Gentlemen, the next business which will be in order before the meeting, is the appointment of a nominating committee to insure the election of officers of the association for the coming year. Reference to the minutes of proceeding at meetings of the association, held in Philadelphia and elsewhere, show that, in order to do this more effectually, the delegates had taken a recess of fifteen minutes. If the association approved of it the same course will be pursued now as upon former occasions.

The question of a recess was then put from the chair, and voted unanimously.

The meeting was called to order at the expiration of a quarter of an hour.

Doctor ATTLEY (Pennsylvania) said—Gentlemen, I would now beg to move you, through the chair, that immediately after the report of the Nominating Committee is received, the President be called upon to read the address usual upon the occasion of our meeting.

Doctor CANDE (Fs.) would prefer that the reports of the Treasurer and Secretary of the association succeed the report of the Nominating Committee. The state of the finances should be shown, and the amount of funds belooging to the body made known. Carried.

In doing this, however, I am far from forgetting the claims of Philadelphia and I would beg of gentlemen to recollect the fact of my now voting in favor of St. Louis, and the early notice which I make in behalf of Philadelphia being selected as the city in which the association will meet the succeeding year. the association will meet the succeeding year. (Appause.)

It was unanimously voted that the next meeting of the Medical Association be held in St. Louis, Missouri.

Dr. Candin, of Fennsylvania, as Ghairman of the Committee or Fublication, reported upon the sale and disposal of the first, second third fourth and fifth votumes of the vinted record of the Transactions of the Association the number presented to kindred societies, the number self, and the number mensing on hand. He wished to observe that the implied, and sometimes open censure, cast upon the committee on account of a lardy issue of the books from the press was not deserved. The records were now voluminous, and much sought after. Under these circumstances, the present assessment of three dollars per annum was insufficient to have a work of such importance printed as speedily as the committee would wish. To meet the emergency, he would move the following resolutions:—

First—That the aversment for the present year be increased from three to five dollars.

Secondiy—That the committee of Publication be authorised to decide upon what terms the printed record of Dis Candine—At other meetings of this body we have had a balance of each in the treasury, but the present ac count shows a deficit. It is absolutely necessary that money beforthcoming. One of our most talented members, one of the highest cramments of the profession, will read a paper which he has spent years in compiling, and which will do honor to the author and the country. The proper fillustration of the paper, so as that it may be published as it should be, will cost one thousand dollars. If it were sent forth in any other style it would be a disgrace to the association. I had this matter in view when I proposed the increase of assessment. I would move that the Publication Committee furnish extra copies of the printed dramslations of the Association to the chairmen of the different committees on oridemics at the expense of this body. I am certain that the members will not object to

The PRESENDENT then delivered the MANUAL ADDRESS.

In this very brilliant and lengthy document the learned gentleman took a review of the history of the status of the medical profession in America from the early days of the republic—of the evils which rose from the competition of the infant colleges and chartered bodies, and the indiscriminate and ill judged issuing of charters by many of the State Legislatures. He congratulated the association upon the improvement which was now visible in these respects. He pressed upon the delegates the accessity which existed, professionally and philosophically, for exertion to secure an enactment intellecting a uniform registry of marriages, births, and deaths, incumbent all over the land. The Legislature of Virginia had already set the example. The adulteration of drugs, both imported and of home manufacture, was well worsely their attention, and suitable State laws of prevention would be better than the federal act now in force.

Dr. Baillis, who was appointed Inspector at New York, made a startling statement relative to the fraud perpetrated in this way. Out of a million and a hall of dollars worth of drugs entered at the Custom House, one-half was useless or worthless. Rubbarb, jalap, iodine and yellow bark were adulterated frightfully, and would have reached the stomach and persons of the people but for the inspector. The number of talented papers and essays which had emanated from this body had tended to elvaste the character of the profession in mercies and the respective states and stores to propograting homeopathy and other decisions. The meeting here to day was proof of the onward course of the profession; and practitioners from the rowded city and silent forest from the Frozen North and sunny South, from the mountain and the prairie, were before him, animated by a common anxiety for its honor and Ordered to be printed, &c.

To the Honorable Board of Assistant Aldermen:—Gentlamme—I return herewith a report and resolution in favor of remitting an assessment of $162.94 on St. Lawrence Church, in Eighty-fourth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues, which amount was laid for several improvements projected in that vicinity.

The petitioners do not complain of any inequality or unfairness in the assessment, nor do they offer any objections to it either on the ground of illegality or of the amount assessed, but they plead poverty and inability to pay the same, and ack that it may be remitted.

I do not consider that the grounds of the application are of such a nature as to earliet the petitioners to favor at the hands of the Common Council. The committee do not pre-ent any reason for recommending a remission of the assessment complete on the ground of illegality or of the amount assessed but they plead poverty and inability to pay the same, and ack that it may be remitted.
